Intent/Justification
Stormwater runoff allows debris, nutrients, and sediment to flow to the lakes . Addressing this issue requires a multi-faceted approach. In recent years, Dane County created a program to partner with municipalities to replace storm sewer outfalls to the lakes. This fund contains over a million dollars and an additional $250,000 has been included in the 2014 proposed budget for this purpose. By expanding the uses for this allocation, the county will have more tools to reduce stormwater runoff to the lakes.

Intent/Justification
The county has placed a priority on operating and managing in a more sustainable way. In order to do this, we must ensure that the products and services we purchase, as well as the facilities we design, build, and operate, are in line with our sustainability principles and help us to advance the sustainability of everything we do. By asking those we contract with to consider how their product or service will meet the county's sustainability principles, we not only are likely to reduce county operating costs and resource use, as well as minimize negative environmental and social impacts of county operations and management, but we also will raise awareness among our vendors about the importance of providing sustainable products, services, and facilities to our community. This policy supports Dane County Board Resolution 103, 12-13, Adopting Sustainability Principles to Guide County Operations, Management, and Policy Making.

Intent/Justification
The county has placed a priority on operating and managing in a more sustainable way. Through previous retrocommissioning projects on existing county facilities, the county has reduced energy consumption by 17% and reduced annual operating costs by $137,000 on the buildings that were affected. Commissioning and retrocommissioning on county facilities can help the county to avoid unnecessary operating costs at the design and construction stages for new buildings, and remedy inefficiencies in existing buildings, by identifying opportunities to maximize building performance. This policy supports Dane County Board Resolution 103, 12-13, Adopting Sustainability Principles to Guide County Operations, Management , and Policy Making and Dane County Board Resolution 299, 1999-2000, Dane County's Green Building Policy.
