Of the following, please choose the three that are most important for your studio space (other):

1. stove (burners)for heating wax 2. lots of counter space
 access to hot/cold water, sink & drain
 Access to water/sink area for teaching-hands on work blank canvas space that can be redesigned for every show clean, safe flooring that is hardwood/sprung or able to be covered in marley convenient location for school kids
 Doesn't have to be sound proofed but DOES have to be where actors can yell without annoying the neighbors.
 fire safe floor (cement)
 First floor space with doors large enough for large pieces of furniture.
 Good acoustical design
 good lighting
 Good neighborhood
 Hot shop is whats needed. Glassblowing and furnace work.
 Individual work area as well as a communal space for collaboration kiln
 large sink space for darkroom, windowless room or corner for darkroom conversion Light fixture grid; electric service box accessibke for dropping temp box location near to downtown
 Open clean flooring that allows for movement-wouldn't have to be sprung rack storage for large canvases & flat file storage for paper Rest Room running water
 Secure, locked space to store equipment shelves, shelves, sink and shelves sink
 Some kind of ventilation for paint fumes, a couple windows would suffice, not really "special" ventilation some ventilation - say windows voltage to accomodate a kiln we need plumbing/electrical but not anything special. We need ventalation and room for larger equipment.

Other comments

Although I am currently renting art studio space downtown, I am willing to keep my options open.

An instructional space is important too. A space the size of a gym would be idea for teaching.

Because I have not begun attempting to make money on my art, I am currently not financially prepared to rent studio space (unless hourly), but LOVE this idea!

Geez, the East Washington corridor is filled with empty buildings...

Hard to hit a sweet spot between suitable space, security, convenience, and cost, but that's really what it comes down to.

Having a with other teachers would be great! We could have small studio areas and a couple of classroom areas for music, art, etc.

Hi. In #23, by 'transit' I assume that you mean acces via public transportation not in general by car. Could you rewrite the question to be more specific? Thanks.

I am seeking a space that would be used exclusively for jazz performances. Local venues in Dane County, including bars and restaurants, are not filling the need for such spaces. This space would feature performances by local, regional and national jazz artists. I do not have nonprofit status but would consider applying for it. I can provide a piano (grand or studio upright), and a sound system. BTW the space in my home (rented) is only suitable for rehearsal.

I appreciate this survey, and am glad I came across a link to it in the Absouletly art newsletter.

I can build my own darkroom as long as there is proper ventilation and running water.

I like Cooperative Communal energy environments

I would consider volunteering my time or services (i.e. gallery supervision, design/marketing of events, teaching community classes) to offset cost of rent or possible fees.

I would like studio space to work as an artist and possibly bring students in to have work space too

I would love to see some of those empty E. Washington buildings being used for studio or exhibition space

I would love to timeshare a studio space with another artist or designer, especially a mother who understands the family/creativity struggle

I'm glad this is underway. To a certain extent, the framing of questions is difficult to work with. While music space is my main interest right now, for instance, I also have interest in other craft spaces and am interested in the possibility of shared spaces akin to Sector67 with access to materials or tools that would otherwise be prohibitively expensive to access. Darkrooms (for photography or prepping screens), foundries, and other spaces available on a sliding scale or per-session could be quite awesome. I know some folks that have been working on similar stuff for a bit of time (coop arts/music space), and I've been interested in finding novel uses for forgotten spaces for some time. Anything that spurs discussion in that direction is great by me.

I'm glad to hear of this initiative. I was just at a web design conference, and had a discussion with another creative about the lack of shared work space options in Madison.

I'm pretty sure accommodating writers would be one of the most economical things you could do - we don't take up much space, and we could probably share a large room full of desks, or a series of small cubicles, kind of like Memorial Library's "cage" setup. I'd personally prefer to pay by the day, because I unfortunately don't have anywhere near enough time for creative writing as I'd like, but even for people like me, having this space and the "time to work now because I am in the workspace" feeling would be a valuable way to make that time.

I've been to an abandoned factory turned to art studio space in Ashville, NC. It was lovely!

Locations just outside of downtown would be best--accessible to many via bike and bus, but outside of downtown so rent is cheaper.

Please consider that not all musicians are loud bands. I am a violist, I play in the symphony and teach lessons and I need a place other than my apartment to teach and practice. There are many acoustic musicians who need space to practice and teach too. Minimal soundproofing can keep our playing from bothering other artists. We are not all loud bands, and many of us have an income stream from teaching lessons. I also do art and would love a mixed use studio in a location shared with artists who work with other media.
Rehearsal space is our next biggest budget item after our 2 part time directors.
Rehearsals can go late so I need an area that is safe.
Remember, we're artists...we have no money. Cheaper is always better
Since moving to Madison, after graduate school, in 1981, I've been trying to find accessible living/studio space.
So many buildings out there, so many artists need space....help.
Thaanks for including me, but as long as I own my home in Jefferson, I am not interested in renting any studio space
Thank you for the thought-provoking and detailed questions.
Thanks for doing this. I'd esp love the opportunity to temporarily enliven Madison's empty storefronts and spaces for rent with installations, exhibits, and events.
Thanks for the survey! This is great movement in the arts!
Thanks, this is great, can't wait to hear about the results.
The darkroom doesn't have to be set up, I can built it myself provided there is ventilation and running water.
The memorial union craftshop is closing there are lots of people looking for photo, woodworking, ceramics, metals (jewelry making)
this is a wonderful project, with positive economic impact for the city.
THIS IS AN AWESOME PROJECT, THANKS FOR HELPING ARTISTS!
This is awesome, thank you
This means a lot to me! I just graduated from the UW Art Department and am currently looking for studio space for the next year. I am on an incredibly tight budget! Ideally, I'd like my own space of some sort and I need to be able to access by bike and bus.
This was not publicized very well. I just heard of it today from the article on the interim director. and I'm on the Madison Arts Commission! why can't we work together?
We have met with three organizations in NYC that have given us shared services advice and have given us their recommendations. We will share anything you need.
what I am really looking for is a place to live and work with a small storefront in a small town. Possibly an upstairs living 1st floor retail basement studio. Something for around 750 total not inc utilities.
would really like to have living space attached to studio space, in industrial type building

Which of the following best describes your interest in renting or leasing rooms or space in your nonresidential buildings? (Other)

I broker central Mad properties, and get requests this would help out with.
I currently rent the space on a limited basis. Looking to expand that.
I want to start an artisan shop in my empty building
Leasing space on a periodic basis, particularly when the building is already open and in-use.
No space available
Planning to purchase a building in Middleton in the next 1-3 years specifically for use as artspace.
Property is fully rented with long-term tenants. I would be interested if they leave however

Which of the following best describes the kind of uses for which you'd be willing to rent or lease your space? (Other):

As workspace or storage space - one loading dock
Building is fully in use, no space to rent or lease Depends on which tenant leaves. Space varies either work space or retail activities
I want to start an artisan shop in my empty building
Interested in renting space occasionally for meetings and public events.
Manufacturing, Paint Booth
Nothing listed at present, but opportunities come up.
Planning to offer studio space, shared equipment and services, along with rental space for adult and children's classes, performances, public and private events, a collaborative workspace/lounge, juried exhibition space and a juried retail gallery aimed at new and developing collectors of contemporary art.

Are there any restrictions on any of the following uses on your property? (Check all that apply)

Again, nothing avail at the moment.
Apartments above - need to be respectful of neighbors
Food. Not licensed for alcohol.
I don't believe so. There has never been food or beverages on the property
I want to start an artisan shop in my empty building
Municipal restrictions vary by property.
Negotiable
None
other tenants in the building
These items would be acceptable if a lease is in place with a clause addressing these issues.
Zoned C3
zoned light industrial, not retail

Would you consider any of the following for all or a portion of your property? (Other):

Depends on what I have avail at any time.

I don't own my space, I rent it.

I want to start an artisan shop in my empty building

Open to discussion

Planning to offer annual & long-term leases for small studios, along with hourly rental of flexible spaces.

Trade for art installations

If the answer to above is "no," why not? (other):

Can the artists work with people with disabilities.

no extra space available - it's all in use every day

Not looking for a long-term lease, only occasional use.

Space not conducive for artists

Which of the following apply to your space available for lease? (Other)

Amenities vary per building.

central air conditioning

Current plan includes natural light; special electrical, plumbing & ventilation; partial sprung flooring; storage; WiFi hotspot; flexible floor plan; collaborative workspace/lounge.

I want to start an artisan shop in my empty building

Loading dock

The properties have been adjusted to the needs of the tenants. There is loading bay and conveyer belt to the basement for equipment. it is currently an Auto parts store.

Any other questions, comments or suggestions you may have would be most welcome.
A list of avail spaces would be a godsend!
Current tenants are MadCap and Harvest Church
Great idea! I happy to be apart of this!
I answered "Yes" to #14 because while I can't provide space at this time, I'm open to collaboration, including writing the right tenants into the business plan. FYI, an artist survey is posted at www.middletonartscenter.com and there is a Facebook page called "Middleton Arts Center Concept," which I created to invite discussion and participation in the formative stages of the project. Excited to see how Make.Do. progresses!
I do not foresee having property available for rent for this purpose, but if I did who would I contact to find such tenants? The space might be flexible.
I have owned People's Art Collective for two years and am closing due to lack of interest from artists in Madison. I am currently looking for studio space just for me - I no longer want the financial responsibility of getting members to join.
I like the idea of this - and glad to see the efforts being made. Sorry we do not have any space available, and will not have in the foreseeable future either.
I own a self storage facility
I think there are property owners who would consider letting some of their public wall space be used as regular exhibition space for visual artists. Please survey to determine interest.
I want to start an artisan shop in my empty building
My rent listed includes utilities.
PropertyDrive.com is a data base of commercial real estate in Dane County and surrounding areas. PropertyDrive.com is free to search. Would we be able to assist you in your data base? Thank you,. Annette Space not available until Fall-Winter 2012
the space I have includes heat and electricity and fronts on Atwood Ave
Was former furniture store so would work great for possible artist space
We currently have six artist studios that are fully leased. We also have the Common Wealth Gallery that is a community art gallery available for rental by the week. Our business incubators, the Madison Enterprise Center and Main Street Industries are suitable for art businesses.
We have a beautiful venue for musical performances with seating for up to 80. Photos of the facility can be seen here: http://gildasclubmadison.org/AboutGildasClub/WhatisGildasClubMadison/PhotosofGildasClubMadison.aspx
We may have room available in our old building if new building plans succeed, but our mission is to serve people with disabilities so we would like to see that component included. Thanks. RB
